Quinton Utley's Tooth-Ache Drops.

FOR THE CURE OF THE TOOTHACHE

One of the Greatest Discoveries of the 19th Century!

FROM the numerous applications I have had for the above preparation, for the last few months, the uniform success which has attended its use, its salutary effects, its power to give immediate relief in the severest cases of Toothache, I have been induced to offer it to those who may be afflicted; with the utmost confidence in its virtue, and the full belief that it will subdue and give entire relief to the severest toothache without the slightest injury to the tooth. I have got (and can get,) numerous testimonials of its efficacy—some from distinguished gentlemen, and all from as reliable persons as are in the State, a publication of which I deem unnecessary at this time, as one of these Drops when tried in an aching tooth will be worth more to the manufacturer and the patient, than all the certificates from great men that could be procured.

The preparation is known only to myself. Every phial is carefully put up by my own hands in the City of Raleigh and labelled with directions for use, and may be found at IRA BECKWITH'S Store, on Fayetteville St. a few doors North of the Yarbrough House, and opposite Lawrence's Hotel, where it will be constantly kept for sale either by the wholesale or retail. Also for sale by the retail at Jone's Drug Store, Sycamore street, Petersburg, Va., and at Andrew Bett's Store, Wake County, N. C. Retail price 50 cts. per Bottle—liberal deduction made when taken by the quantity.

To all who may have the toothache—try it, and then it will need no puffing.

All orders from a distance promptly attended to by Mr. Beckwith or myself.

QUINTON UTLEY.

Raleigh, September 7, 1852. 86—1y.

TO MERCHANTS—IMPORTANT AND TRUE. The fact, that merchants can supply their wants in their home markets, and thus save the trouble and expense of a northern trip, being fully established, the subscribers, in anticipation of a large demand for their popular Ready Made Clothing, have manufactured an unusually large stock, which, they may safely say, has never been surpassed, if it has been equalled, in the southern market.

Encouraged by the very liberal patronage hitherto received, and with largely increased facilities, we are determined to keep pace with the onward spirit of the age, and to use every honorable effort to deserve our share of the "public distribution." Merchants visiting Petersburg, whether dealing in Clothing or not, are invited to visit our WHOLESALE ROOMS, now stocked with every variety of Clothing, of our own manufacture, the most modern styles, and at New York prices.

MASS MEETING AT Dr. DAVIS' MILL.

According to previous notice a very large number of the citizens of Franklin, Nash, and Warren assembled at Dr. Tom Davis' Mill, in Franklin County, on the 28th instant. It was indeed a glorious rally for the Democracy, both in point of numbers and enthusiasm. About 12 o'clock the meeting was organized by calling on the Hon. Archibald H. Arrington, of Nash, to preside, by appointing Edward Alston, Esq., of Warren, H. G. Williams, Sr., of Nash, and A. H. Davis and W. D. Coppedge, Esqrs., of Franklin, Vice Presidents, and by appointing the following Secretaries, Dr. R. E. Williams, of Franklin, N. F. Alston, of Warren, and H. G. Williams, Jr., of Nash. The President on taking the Chair made some handsome and pertinent remarks and concluded by introducing A. M. Lewis, Esq., of Franklin, who delivered a very able and argumentative speech of more than two hours length, in defence of the principles and candidates of the Democratic party. After Mr. Lewis concluded his speech the crowd repaired to the dinner table, where the greatest abundance was provided for the large crowd in attendance. After dinner the company returned and having resumed their seats, were addressed by Dr. Pritchard, of Warren, who (after making a most eloquent and happy allusion to the tall hickory pole, of near a hundred feet, with its many banners with appropriate devices streaming in the breeze,) delivered a very spirited and eloquent speech of considerable length, which was well received. As soon as Dr. Pritchard had taken his seat there were repeated calls for Thomas M. Arrington, Esq., of Nash, who took the stand and enchained the attention of the audience for about a half an hour with a very humorous, well-timed and eloquent address, which closed the meeting amid shouts of applause and three cheers for PIERCE and KING.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION.

MR. HOLDEN: At the late session of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, held at Smithfield, N. C., the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention be and they are hereby tendered to the citizens of the town of Smithfield and its vicinity for their great kindness and hospitality extended to them and their friends attending the meeting.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Convention be tendered to the authorities of the town of Smithfield for the measures adopted by them to prevent the exhibitions of the travelling Circus Company during the session of the Convention.

Resolved, That a committeee of three be appointed to memoralise the Legislature of North Carolina on the subject of putting down the evil in that way which to them may seem best.

In reference to the two last resolutions I will add that the authorities of the town had forbid the exhibition by the travelling Circus Company during the session of the Convention, which the citizens had kindly invited to hold their session with them. Notwithstanding this they determined to hold their exhibition immediately in the suberbs of the town, and while the Convention was in session and one of their ministers preaching in the Methodist Church, the business of the one and the services in the other were purposely interrupted by this Company. Thus has a foreign travelling company of Circus performers who are now travelling through our State, attended with all of the demoralizing and vicious influences, grossly insulted a respectable and highly numerous denomination of the State, and set at defiance the wishes and feelings of the authorities and citizens of one of our towns.

The undersigned in connection with Rev. J. J. James and Professor Wm. T. Brooks were appointed a committee to memoralise the Legislature to enact such measures as will effectually put down what is in all hands deemed a great evil. This matter is with due deference submitted to the consideration of the General Assembly now in session.

NATHANIEL J. PALMER,
Secretary of the Convention.

October 26, 1852.

N. B.—The next session of the Convention will be held in the town of Tarborough, N. C., commencing on Thursday before the third Sabbath in October, 1853.

HON. JOHN BELL.—GEN. PIERCE ADMITTED TO BE SOUND. This gentleman arrived in our city on yesterday. He was received by a procession of his fellow-citizens, and escorted into the city. In his speech he stated that Gen. Pierce was sound on the compromise question. How do those whigs in this city feel now who have echoed the New Boston speech? Must they not stand abashed before this frank admission of Col. Bell? Col. Bell looks in feeble health, and spoke evidently under exhaustion.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

We publish to-day the Proclamation of His Excellency, Gov. Reid, setting apart Thursday, the 25th day of this month, as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his manifold mercies and blessings.

The Governors of other States have set apart the same day for thanksgiving.

No people ever had greater cause for thanksgiving and praise than the people of the United States. They have been blessed with peace, prosperity, an abundance of the fruits of the earth, and all civil and religious privileges; and it is therefore meet and proper that they should assemble together statedly as a people to lift the voice of praise, of gratitude, and thanksgiving to the Great Author of all good, and to supplicate Him for a continuance of these blessings.

THE PATRIOT'S CORRESPONDENT.

A late number of our paper contained the following article:

"A LIE BRANDED. A correspondent of the Greensborough Patriot writing from this place, says: "The vote of the locos in the Senate, confirming Dr. Shaw in his seat over John Barnard, upon the evidence they had, is without a parallel in the annals of legislation. And so sensible were they of their guilty couduct in this matter, and the great wrong that they were doing to Mr. Barnard and the people of his district, that all of them, except George Bower of Ashe, could not but show it in their actions, and more particularly in their faces. Some screwed and twisted in their seats; others turned red as scarlet and threw up their heads in stubborn defiance; while the more conscientious and honest of the clan turned pale, shut their eyes, and went it blind against right and justice, for the party."

The Raleigh Register makes extracts from this letter, and calls them "pungent truths." We pronounce the above a lie, deliberately penned for the Greensborough Patriot. There is no truth in it, and the correspondent knew it when he wrote it. This is strong language, but it is necessary under the circumstances. It is a peculiar feature in Scott-Seward tactics to abuse and defame leading Democrats for a faithful performance of duty; and we are determined, so far as we are concerned, that these malignant defamers shall be branded as they deserve."

We did not know, when we penned the foregoing, who this Correspondent ("Candor") was; but we now have reason to believe that he is a member of the House of Commons. Such language as that written by the Correspondent, if it had been uttered by the member in his place, would have subjected him to reprimand from the Speaker, by direction of the House; but of rumors and anonymous Correspondents the House can, of course, take no notice.

We regretted to have to use the language we did, but we take not one word of it back. We have employed no such language in relation to the Whig side of either the Senate or the Commons; and we shall not stand quietly by and permit such reflections on our own friends to pass unrebuked.

This Correspondent, "Candor," in noticing our article, indulges in the lowest personal abuse. We shall not imitate him in this respect. When a person of the opposite party utters falsehoods or slanders about our friends—about men who, we know, have been actuated in the performance of public duty by just and honorable motives, we shall be sure to tell this person of the nature of his conduct, and we shall do this in such language as will properly and truly set forth this conduct to the people of the State.

This Correspondent, "Candor," in his reply, grossly and deliberately slanders and calumniates the Editor of this paper; and the Editors of the Patriot, in publishing this reply, have made themselves parties to these slanders and calumnies.

This Correspondent also intimates that he was advised not to "descend to notice" any thing from us"; and he would leave the inference from his remarks that he was induced, by the persuasion of friends, to refrain from assaulting us personally. What we have to say in reply to this is, that we hold ourselves the equal of any other man in point of integrity, honesty of motive, and personal respectability; and we can look proudly down upon this Correspondent of the Patriot, as our inferior both in influence and position. As to the personal assault, all we have to say is, that we are in the City, and expect to be for months to come; and that we are not to be deterred from the discharge of duty by threats or attacks of any character whatsoever. We are responsible for what we say; we write over our own name, and we are willing to leave our conduct, which is open to the world, to the impartial judgment of all honest men. As John Randolph once said, in reply to an antagonist, we "have seen hotter times than this."

The Wilmington and Raleigh Railroad has declared a dividend of six per cent. from the earnings of the Road for the last year.

GEN. PIERCE'S SPEECH.

At Concord, New Hampshire, on Monday 10 o'clock, most of the stores and offices were closed, and business was generally suspended. A meeting was soon after held in the Representatives Hall, which was crowded full of citizens, a large number of ladies being present. Hon. Ira Perley was chosen Chairman, and Dr. Parker Secretary. An appropriate series of resolutions were reported and unanimously adopted. The Chairman, after the resolutions had been read, called upon Gen. Pierce to address the meeting. The crowded hall became as still as death as Gen. Pierce rose to comply; and with deep emotion, which at times almost overcame him, and in a calm and impressive manner suited to the occasion, he spoke as follows:

"Mr. Chairman: How deeply have all hearts been impressed by the fervent appeal to that Power in which our fathers put their trust, in the hour of their weakness and trials. And how has that solemn impression been enhanced by the last words of the truly great man, just read by Rev. Dr. Bouton.

But a few weeks have passed since a deep gloom was cast over our country, by the death of the great statesman of the West. It had long been understood that this light was flickering in its socket, and must soon go out. Still, the announcement, when it came, was laden with sadness; and we have all since then been disposed to look with warmer affection and more glowing gratitude to his great compeer and associate, the intelligence of whose sudden decease will fall like a funeral pall upon the public mind throughout that Union to which he gave his best affections and noblest efforts.

I had met Mr. Webster repeatedly prior to 1833, but my personal acquaintance with him may be said to have have commenced with my first winter at Washington. His attachment to our State was singularly strong, and this circumstance, perhaps, led to a series of kind acts and courtesies towards me, during the session of 1833-'4, and afterward, the grateful recollection of which will never be effaced. I mourn for him as for a friend for whose personal regard my own heart has given back a true and full response.

Among eminent citizens of commanding power and influence while I was in the Senate, he stood perhaps preeminent. In his rich combination of qualities as an orator, lawyer and statesman, it may be safely said he had no rival. How forcibly and sadly are we reminded of the great men with whom he was associated in the Senate chamber, and who preceded him in his transit through the "dark valley!" White, Grundy, Forsyth, Southard, Wall, Linn, Sevier, Silas Wright, Hill, Woodbury, Calhoun, Clay—men who left their impress upon the age—names indissolubly connected with the fame and history of their country; all like him, whose death we are now called upon to deplore, were links in the chain which bound the past generation to the present; and all like him are now on the other side of that narrow line which divides time from eternity. Upon whom have their mantles fallen! Who are to take their places in the perils through which our country may be called to pass? Who, with patriotic courage and statesmanlike forecast are to guide in the storms that will, at times, inevitably threaten us, in our unexampled development of resources as a nation, our almost fearful progress, our position of amazing responsibility as the great confederated, self-governing power of the globe? These are questions which will press themselves upon all minds; but who, alas! can satisfactorily answer them!

To speak of Mr. Webster's genius, his varied and solid attainments, his services, would be to discourse of matters as familiar, even to the children of his native State, as household words. Besides, this must be left to vigorous pens and eloquent tongues, after the first gush of grief, and the oppressive sense of loss, shall to some extent have passed away. It is, and long has been, my firm conviction that Mr. Webster had a hold upon the minds and hearts of his countrymen, which will fail to be justly estimated, only because there has been no full opportunity to measure it. You, Mr. Chairman, have truly said that Mr. Webster's greatness was of that rare character which no earthly position could exalt. He came to official stations, as he approached all subjects presented to his mind, their superior and their master. He has reared for himself a vast pillar of renown, which will stand in undiminished strength and grandeur, when the works of men's hands erected to his honor will be like Nineveh; and, I fear, when this Union may have shared the fate which was the dread of his latter years. A few years ago, when the distinguished brother of the deceased was called in an instant from time to eternity, in the Court-room in this place, with the words of a perfect sentence lingering upon his lips, another citizen, most eminent and beloved, (the lamented George Sullivan,) exclaimed, "What shadows we are, what shadows we pursue!" How these emphatic words come back to us here as if by an echo. How mere earthly honors and distinctions fade amid a gloom like this; how political asperities are chastened; what a lesson to the living; what an admonition to personal malevolence, now awed and subdued, as the great heart of the nation throbs heavily at the portals of his grave.

I have no heart to speak, or to contemplate the extent of the loss we have sustained. As a personal friend—as a son of New Hampshire—as an American citizen, I shall be, with thousands, a sincere mourner at his obsequies."

☞ We learn that the meeting at Clement's Mill, on Saturday last, was large and enthusiastic, and in every respect worthy of the indomitable "Dark Corner" Democracy. Capt. John F. Hoke was introduced to the assemblage by Wesley Jones, Esq., and spoke at some length in his most able, spirited and effective manner; and James T. Marriott, Esq., closed the proceedings on the occasion in his best style of wit and humor.

Another large meeting was held on Monday at Laws' Store, in this County, which was addressed by Perrin Busbee, Esq., Capt. Hoke, Col. Wheeler, and others. The returns will show that the Wake Democracy performed their whole duty yesterday.

THE NASH DEMOCRACY.

We learn that, on Saturday last, there was a tremendous outpouring of the Nash Democracy, in Nashville.

W. W. Avery, Esq., was present by invitation, and spoke at length and with his accustomed ability. He was followed by A. M. Lewis, Thos. M. Arrington, and H. G. Williams, jr., Esquires—all of whom entertained the company assembled in their happiest manner.

Old Nash lumbered yesterday for PIERCE and KING.

SOUTHERN LADIES' BOOK.

We have received the first number of the Southern Ladies' Book, a monthly Journal of polite Literature, just established in New Orleans by William T. Leonard & Co., and edited by Miss L. Virginia Smith and Dr. W. T. Leonard. The number before us was issued from the True Delta press, and the typographical part of the work has been executed in very handsome style. The contributors to this number are George D. Prentice, Miss L. Virginia Smith, and others.

The South ought to sustain this work. It already deserves a liberal patronage; and with the aid which might be at once extended to it, the proprietors might soon render it the equal of Godey's.

Terms, $3 per annum. Address William T. Leonard, & Co. 103 Charles St. New Orleans.

☞ We are indebted to Mr. Pomeroy for the November number of that unrivalled periodical, "Harper's New Monthly Magazine."

GOV. REID'S BIENNIAL MESSAGE.

We hear on all sides the warmest commendations of Gov. Reid's Biennial Message. It is truly a model document. There is no partyism in it, but it breathes throughout a spirit of devotion to the whole State and its best interests. The last Carolina Watchman contains an article on the Message, from which we make the following extracts:

"GOV. REID'S BIENNIAL MESSAGE. We are constrained to admit that in the main this is a very straight forward, manly, and patriotic State paper; much more so than we ever expected from a democratic source. Of course he must crow a little over the success of that valuable conception, to wit, his plan for amending the Constitution. And we do not care a fig if he does; for we always regarded it as a simple movement on the part of the Whigs to insist upon the open Convention at the time they did so, as a substitute for the plan proposed by His Excellency: For the first contest between him and Gov. Manly, showed very plainly that this mode was acceptable to the people of North Carolina, which was made still more manifest by the second campaign between these candidates. Deserted as we were upon this question by the Western Democrats, it always seemed to us a vain thing, to expect that we could do any thing for Western rights in this way.

We, for one, are disposed to profit so far by the defeat which we sustained in the late Gubernatorial election, as to take for granted this one fact, to wit: that LEGISLATIVE INSTRUMENTALITY is the mode preferred by the people of North Carolina for making amendments to the Constitution.

We are satisfied also, that a large majority of our people are in favor of infusing more of the popular element into our form of Government. Whigs and Democrats have both said so through their party Conventions. So that neither party can oppose the further amendments proposed by this Message in the mode of electing Judges and Justices of the Peace. We concur, therefore, in this recommendation, and we think it altogether advisable that the amendments should be made in the manner prescribed in the State Constitution.

* * * * * * * * *

To the remainder of this Message we advert with pride and satisfaction. The remarks of His Excellency on the subject of Common Schools: the suggestions as to the improvement of the system and the beneficent results which he anticipates, do credit to his heart as well as to his understanding.

No less gratifying are the views set forth in this document on the subject of State improvements. We rejoice to find that these undertakings are regarded by His Excellency as likely to prove successful. We are cheered by the prospects he presents of great good to the public without any increase of the burthens of taxation. We are more gratified at this, for we were afraid that the croakings of certain demagogues of both parties might have reached his ears and influenced his judgment. But in this matter he has shown himself a true and faithful son of North Carolina, and in this respect, at least, worthy of the station he occupies.

No less conservative and sound are his views upon the subject of taxation. The inequalities pointed out by him certainly seem to exist, and without having devoted much consideration to the subject, the amendments in the Revenue System proposed by him appear to us eminently proper.

Upon the whole, we repeat, that the Message of Governor Reid has raised him very much in our estimation. It is so patriotic, independent, and so statesman like, that we are entirely disarmed of all disposition to criticise its minor defects. It certainly argues well for the character of our State, to see a Chief Magistrate elevating himself above the atmosphere of party politics, and bravely speaking for the good of the commonwealth. Never did we expect to speak such words of the present Governor, but so long as he continues to consult the true interests of the State and the proprieties of his station, he shall never hear a note of disparagement from us."

The Watchman, which is, as many of our readers are aware, a Whig journal, deserves credit for these liberal and manly remarks. We are gratified to find the Watchman taking ground for the Legislative mode of amending the Constitution. That paper is right—the people have decided in favor of that mode; and they look with confidence to this Assembly for a two-thirds vote for the Free Suffrage bill.

MESSRS. BRANCH AND RANSOM.

The Raleigh Register and its Correspondents have been in the habit, during the late campaign, of extolling Mr. Ransom beyond measure, and thereby endeavoring to produce the impression that he has proved an overmatch for Mr. Branch. "Comparisons" are always "odious"—and our readers will bear witness that in this matter we did not begin them. Mr. Ransom, it may be confessed, is a young gentleman who declaims fluently, and manages a bad cause with ingenuity; but our information from all the discussions between these gentlemen has been of an entirely different nature from that of the Register. Mr. Branch has driven Mr. Ransom from every position, and silenced or spiked all his guns in the late canvass; and he has done this as much by the native strength of his intellect and his large amount of political information, as by the soundness of the cause committed to his charge.

These are facts which are known to the great body of the people of this District; and we state them here and now, not with a view to affect injuriously the reputation for talents of Mr. Ransom, nor to flatter Mr. Branch, but as an act of simple justice to the latter gentleman. If the Whigs of the District are satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Ransom has performed his duty, it is well; we are content with the declaration, thus provoked by the Raleigh Register, and which is abundantly sustained by the facts, that Mr. Branch has handled Mr. Ransom with entire ease, and has overset all his positions, from the commencement of the canvass to its termination.

The Democrats of this District are under obligations to Mr. Branch for the gallant, faithful, and able manner in which he bore their banner in the late contest.

☞ We have seen a copy of the National Era, which contains "a synopsis of the proceedings of the Freesoil Convention of North Carolina," held on the 16th October at New Salem, Randolph County. This Convention, which was doubtless a very insignificant affair, passed Resolutions in favor of John P. Hale for the Presidency, and formed an Electoral Ticket for this State. Among the names of their Electors we observe those of the Hon. James C. Dobbin and George W. Baxter, Esq.! The whole movement is of itself absurd enough, but the idea of using the names of these gentlemen for such a purpose, makes it more so. Both of them, we know, are as hostile to John P. Hale's election as it is possible for men to be; and Mr. Dobbin, it is known, has on more than one occasion spoken of the Hale movement and of all Freesoilers, in terms of the heaviest condemnation. Such a statement in connexion with these gentlemen is unnecessary in this State, where they are known; and we have made it only for the purpose of preventing honest people in other States from being misled and deceived.

☞ We have received several numbers of the "Jubilee," published in Salisbury, N. C., edited by D. F. Long, Esq. It is a large well printed sheet, and the number before us shows ability in the editor sufficient for the task he has undertaken. The "Jubilee" is Democratic in politics, published weekly at $2 per annum.

We have also received the first number of the "North Carolina Democrat," published in Yanceyville, by Messrs. Graves and Cooley, and edited by Rufus Graves, Esq. The "Democrat" promises to be a useful sheet; and we hope that both these journals may be well sustained.

☞ The last Newbernian states that the Scott and Graham Club of Newbern was addressed on the evening of the 19th October, "by Mr. Hersman, from one of the Western Counties of the State." We presume that this was Mr. Hersman, Travelling Agent for the Fire and Life Insurance Companies of this place. Gov. Morehead, President of the North Corolina Railroad Company, has also been in the field for the Scott-Seward candidate; but we are consoled by the fact that the cause of both these dignitaries was laid out cold, on yesterday, by the sovereign people of these States.

☞ We learn that the Democrats of Chatham had a large and most enthusiastic Mass Meeting at Jones's Mills on Thursday last. The Hon. James C. Dobbin, the State Elector, was present, and spoke at length with his usual eloquence and effect.

The battle in Chatham has been warmly waged on both sides; but we have an abiding confidence that the sterling Democracy of that County have fully maintained their ground.

Mr. Webster, without doubt, possessed the most massive and vigorous mind that was ever vouch-safed to any one man in America. His speeches will ever be regarded as the purest specimens of American eloquence, and as among the richest treasure of his countrymen. They have been carefully preserved, and so far as they are concerned, it may be said of them as he upon another occasion said, "the past at least is secure." But it is not altogether in his speeches that he was great, nor in them alone is evinced the vast powers of his unsurpassed intellect. Mr. Webster was never seen to more advantage than within his own household, the family board, or in strolling with him over his farm at Marshfield, or standing with him upon the sea-beach and looking out upon the ocean before us, which, like the scope of his intellectual vision, appeared boundless.

We have enjoyed these things, and there are no events in our life in which we have experienced more pleasure. As we write they involuntarily rise up before us, like blessed visions of other and better days. To hear him converse upon the past, the present, the future, in a familiar, colloquial manner—to listen to his great thoughts expressed in the purest words of our language, and wonder how he could thus speak and think—are joys which we can find no words to express. It was our fortune to pass several days at his home in Marshfield some six or eight years age, and well we remember one beautiful night, when the heavens seemed to be studded with countless myriads of stars, that about nine o'clock in the evening we walked out, and he stood beneath the beautiful weeping elm which raises its majestic form within a few paces of his dwelling, and looking up through the leafy branches he appeared for several minutes to be wrapped in deep thought, and at length, as if the scene, so soft and beautiful, had suggested the lines, he quoted certain verses of the eighth Psalm, beginning with the words: 'When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers—the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained—what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor,' &c, The deep low tone in which he repeated these inspired words, and the deep wrapped attention with which he gazed up through the branches of the elm, struck us with a feeling of greater awe and solemnity than we ever felt, when in a year or two later we visited some of the most magnificent cathedrals of the old world, venerable with the ivy of centuries, and mellowed with the glories of a daily church service for a thousand years. He was thinking then of that far-distant world, wherein it is promised that the good of this life shall live forever and ever. We remained out beneath the tree for over an hour, and all the time he conversed about the scriptures, which no man has studied with greater attention, and of which no man whom we ever saw knew so much, or appeared to understand and appreciate so well. He talked of the books of the old Testament especially, and dwelt with unaffected pleasure upon Isaiah, the Psalms, and especially the Book of Job. The Book of Job, he said, taken as a mere work of literary genius, was one of the most wonderful productions of any age or in any language. As an epic poem, he deemed it far superior to either the Iliad or the Odyssey. The two last, he said, received much of their attraction from the mere narration of warlike deeds, and from the perilous escapes of the chief personages from death and slaughter; but the Book of Job was a purely intellectual narrative. Its power was shown in the dialogues of the characters introduced. The story was simple in its construction, and there was little in it to excite the imagination or arouse the sympathy. It was purely an intellectual production, and depended upon the power of the dialogue, and not upon the interest of the story, to produce its effects. This was considering it merely as an intellectual work. He read it through very often, and always with renewed delight. In his judgment, it was the greatest epic ever written. We well remember his quotation of some of the verses in the thirty-eighth chapter: "Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said: Who is this that darkneth counsel by words without knowledge? Gird up now thy loins like a man; for I will demand of thee, and answer thou me. Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? Declare if thou hast understanding," &c. Mr. Webster was a fine reader, and his recitation of particular passages to which he felt warm, were never surpassed, and were capable of giving the most exquisite delight to those who appreciate them. Boston Atlas.

Another strong Whig Witness against Gen. Scott. We publish at length the sensible and conclusive letter of Mr. T. L. Clingman, who represents in Congress, the strongest Whig district of North Carolina, assigning reasons why the South should repudiate Gen. Scott's nomination, and should sustain Gen. Pierce. It is another barbed arrow, drawn from the quiver of Whiggery, and shot into the ranks of Sewardism. Its effect cannot but be considerable. How is it possible for the Scott ticket to maintain any stand at the South when the Democracy is united, and when so many of the ablest and most influential leaders of Southern Whiggery are abandoning the cause in disgust, and proclaiming unanswerable reasons why Scott's election would be disastrous to the South and to the Union? Rich. Enquirer.

"Skies Bright." The National Intelligencer, in its attempt to put a good face upon the present prospect, makes some allusion to the opinions of the venerable ex-editor of the Union, Thomas Ritchie, Esq. Now, we happen to know that this sagacious reader of the signs of the times is perfectly confident of the election of Gen. Pierce, and would, "were he a betting man," wager any amount upon the general result, and 15,000 democratic majority in Virginia. The Intelligencer had better seek comfort in another quarter. Washington Union.

The Meeting at Dewar's Store. There was a spirited and enthusiastic rally of the Democrats of this County at Dewar's Store on Wednesday, the 20th inst. Buckhorn, Barbecue, Neill's Creek and Upper Little River sent their contributions of "good men and true." The feeling of the upper end of the County is deep and strong in the cause of Pierce and King, and every man there is anxiously waiting for the 2d of November. The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Robert Strange, Jr., William McNeill, Malcom J. McDuffie, and J. G. Shepherd.

DEATH OF DANIEL WEBSTER.

The death of this eminent citizen, which took place on Sunday morning last, will occasion a profound sensation throughout our own country and the world. He died at an advanced age—in the seventy-first year of his life—and in the full possession of his faculties.

Mr. Webster was unquestionably the greatest orator in the world when he died. His superiority in the school, in which he had made his own, was uncontested. He was an orator, not so much in the mere graces of manner as in those copious resources with which he fortified and adorned his speeches. His style was at once solid and sublime. There is a depth of thought in his writings and in his speeches, an elevation of tone in the language in which he clothed his ideas, and a grandeur in his illustrations, that will command admiration through all coming time. He seemed to have taken for his model the poetry of Milton. There is a stately but harmonious dignity, a gorgeous style of imagery, and a deep and sonorous music in the productions of Webster, that remind us forcibly of the rich and massive verse of the immortal bard At the bar, as well as in the Senate, Mr. Webster was confessedly the head of all others in the great qualities which he so abundantly possessed. He was no less thorough as a lawyer than he was resistless as an advocate, but he excelled in the arena of the national legislature. That was the scene of his greatest triumphs. What he said there will live as long as the language, and in the future, new generations of men will profit by the great ideas he uttered, the great principles he defended or opposed, and the example he left to posterity of his unrivalled powers in every field of intellectual controversy.

Mr. Webster, throughout his life, belonged to the whig or federal party. But although some of his greatest efforts were called out in opposition to the antagonists of that party, on more than one occasion he gave his best energies to the cause of his country. It was on these occasions that he laid broad and secure the foundations of a deathless renown. It was on these occasions that he seemed to glow with inspiration. It was on these occasions that he gave to mankind the noblest and grandest creations of his intellect. The poet may laud this part of his history to the skies; the painter's art may exhaust itself in trying to preserve the lineaments of the great orator at these moments; but his best title to the gratitude of his country, and his securest hold upon future admiration and reverence, are founded in the works themselves, which, in all the splendor of eloquence, in all the majesty of patriotism, and in all the solidity of truth, will remain, like the eternal hills, enduring monuments to his memory.

Some of Mr. Webster's great speeches are as full of dramatic power and entrancing interest as the productions of the old masters. His orations at the laying of the corner stone, and the completion of the Bunker Hill monument; his reply to Mr. Hayne; his speech at the New York dinner; his discourse on the characters of Thomas Jefferson and John Adams—these will survive to the latest period of time, in all the grandeur and symmetry of their proportions.

The life of such a man as Daniel Webster is a history of his country. He was cotemporaneous with some of the greatest events and many of the greatest men of the last fifty years. His education commenced almost at the moment that the constitution went into being, and from that period down to the present he has been an actor in many of the most important scenes in the progress of the republic. When such a man lives, the space he fills is large, and the influence he wields is commanding. He leads masses of men by his genius, and he may make and unmake a great party. When he dies it is like blotting a star from the heavens. We feel his loss more sensibly, as it is a loss that cannot be supplied.

Mr. Webster was more emphatically at the head of the whig party than any other man but Henry Clay. He was early attached to the federal party, and he adhered to it with ardor after it had assumed another name. But Mr. Webster survived the affections of his party. He lived long enough to realize its heartlessness and its ingratitude. He saw it flourish under the prestige of his master intellect, and succeed under the bold leadership of Clay; and he was proud of it. But when the fate of Clay was made manifest to the world—when that great champion was thrown aside for the glitter of an availability that never could have been triumphant if the whig party had not been made strong by his brilliant leadership—then Mr. Webster must have felt that his own fate was foreshadowed, and that his own doom was written. Presented to the very last Whig National Convention, he was called upon to undergo in his own person the final and severe trial. He saw the party to which he dedicated the best years of his life—whose pathway the steady golden radiance of his genius had more than once lighted to victory—trampling his just aspirations under foot; and, on the one hand, sacrificing his friends and himself for their heroic stand in favor of the Union; while, on the other hand, they elevated the candidate of the foes of that Union, at the same time dealing in professions of regard for the very principles they had just before tried to destroy. His proud spirit sank before this spectacle of neglect and of ingratitude. The whole past rushed upon his mind. His services and his sacrifices for and his devotion to whig principles all came back upon him to torture the evening of his life, and to poison the years he then believed to be in store for him. But, alas! he calculated too confidently upon his own powers of endurance. To fall for his principles was not to dishonor himself; but to fall under the blows of those who have been made great by his devotion to whig doctrines, who had, many of them, obtained office and power in his name—this was a fate for which all his former disappointments, and all the outrages heaped upon Henry Clay, had not prepared him. He feel wounded by the daggers of those who had fawned upon and flattered him; who had called him "godlike," and made him the idol of their prayers and their praise. Well may we say of this sad sequel of his life, in the language of the poet:

"'Twas thine own friends who gave the fatal blow,
And helped to plant the wound that laid thee low.
So the struck eagle, stretched upon the plain,
No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
Viewed his own feathers on the fatal dart,
And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart.
Keen were his pangs, but keener far to feel
He nursed the pinion which impelled the steel."

Even the grave, wherein all the hatreds of passion and of party should be buried and forgotten, has not secured Mr. Webster from the harsh and bitter persecutions of his former partisans. His death was the signal for the unconcealed and almost public felicitations of the friends of Scott at the national capital. Because, in the moment of his sorrow and sickness, he turned his back upon political malignity, and retired home to die in peace, declining, with the sad dignity of a stricken heart, to add his own voice to the ingrate sentence which had condemned him, the hounds of faction were let loose upon his track, and now over his honored remains they howl their chorus of curses. They forget all his labors in their behalf—his long years of championship of whig measures, and the lustre he had shed upon the whig faith. They forget all, and remember only the dark spots in a character which they have tried to defly for nearly half a century. They forget all, because at the last moment of his career Mr. Webster would not, or could not, dishonor himself and stain his own fame by applauding what he conceived to be the degradation of his party and the signal of its utter and its annihilating overthrow. First he is prostrated in the house of his friends; and then, because he would not embrace the ingrates who had struck the fatal blow, he is insulted in his dying hours, and his illustrious name made the theme of vulgar ribaldry and blasphemous joy. Washington Union.

Hon. Thomas L. Clingman. We refer our readers to the able letter of Hon. Thomas L. Clingman on the Presidential question, which appears in to-day's paper. Mr. Clingman has heretofore acted with the Whig Party, but he cannot swallow the Seward nomination. He is a gentleman of commanding ability and a national reputation. His influence in his own District is known to be very great. If the issue of the election in North Carolina had been doubtful, the accession of Mr. Clingman to the support of Pierce and King would go far to ensure us the victory. Let every patriotic whig read this letter, and see the reasons which induce Mr. Clingman to support Franklin Pierce and William R. King. Let them see the position on this question of a man who has more reputation for statesman-like ability than any whig in North Carolina; of a man who lives in, represents and reflects the will of the whigs of the Western Reserve, (as his District has been called,) heretofore the strong-hold of whiggery. Independent Southern Rights Whigs, you need not be ashamed to be found in company with Thomas L. Clingman. Fayetteville Carolinian.

OFFICIAL.

Executive Mansion, Washington,
Monday Morning, October 25, 1852.

Gentlemen: The painful intelligence received yesterday enforces upon me the sad duty of announcing to the executive departments the death of the Secretary of State. Daniel Webster died at Marshfield, in Massachusetts, on Sunday, the 24th of October, between two and three o'clock in the morning.

Whilst this irreparable loss brings its natural sorrow to every American heart, and will be heard far beyond our borders with mournful respect, wherever civilization has nurtured men who find in transcendant intellect and faithful, patriotic service a theme for praise, it will visit with still more poignant emotion his colleagues in the administration, with whom his relations have been so intimate and so cordial.

The fame of our illustrious statesman belongs to his county—the admiration of it to the world. The record of his wisdom will inform future generations, not less than its utterance has enlightened the present. He has bequeathed to posterity the richest fruits of the experience and judgment of a great mind, conversant with the greatest national concerns. In these his memory will endure as long as our country shall continue to be the home and guardian of freemen.

The people will share with the executive departments in the common grief which bewails his departure from amongst us.

In the expression of individual regret at this afflicting event, the executive departments of the government will be careful to manifest every observance of honor which custom has established as appropriate to the memory of one so eminent as a public functionary, and so distinguished as a citizen.

The Acting Secretary of State will communicate this sad intelligence to the diplomatic corps near this government, and through our ministers abroad to foreign governments.

The members of the cabinet are requested as a further testimony of respect for the deceased, to wear the usual badges of mourning for thirty days.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,
MILLARD FILLMORE.

To the Acting Secretary of State, and the Secretaries of the Treasury, Interior, War, Navy, the Attorney General and Postmaster General.

---

In pursuance of the order contained in the above letter orders were issued by the several heads of departments that the different bureaus thereof should be closed for the day. The Department of State was directed to be hung in mourning, and it was recommended to the various officers of that department to wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days. We understand that the Secretaries joined in a letter of condolence to Mrs. Webster.

Two Weeks Later from California—More Fugitive Slaves Given Up, &c.

New Orleans, Oct. 27th. The steamer Falcon has arrived with San Francisco dates of Oct. 1st. The steamer Tennessee arrived at Panama on the 19th, with the mails. The Falcon touched at San Juan on the 21st. She left the Prometheus there waiting for passengers.

The health of the Isthmus was good.

Mining accounts from California were favorable.

Several fugitive slaves had been arrested since the decision of the Supreme Court, and delivered to their masters.

A great sale of San Francisco property had taken place at prices fifty per cent. higher than anticipated.

Interesting in regard to Mr. Webster—Meeting of the Suffolk Bar—Speech of the Hon. Rufus Choate and others.

Boston, Oct. 28. A meeting of the members of the Suffolk bar was held this morning, at which resolutions of sympathy for the family and friends of Mr. Webster were introduced.

The same resolutions were subsequently presented to the United States Circuit Court, Judges Sprague and Curtis on the bench. Eloquent and touching speeches were made by Hon. Mr. Slemner and Rufus Choate. Also by George T. Curtis and Judges Sprague and Curtis.

During the remarks of Judge Curtis, he gave a most interesting and affecting account of his interview with Mr. Webster in his dying hours. On one occasion, when his friends were gathered around him, Mr. Webster said, "what would be the condition of any of us without hope in immortality? What is there to rest that hope upon but the Gospel?" On another occasion the great dying statisman said: "My greatest wish on earth has been to do my Maker's will. I thank Him. And I also thank Him for the means of doing some good for those beloved objects, and for the many blessings that surround me. I also thank Him for my nature and my associations. I thank Him I am to die under so many circumstances of love and affection." All present were deeply impressed while these remarks were being delivered.

A great meeting was held to-day at Faneul Hall, to adopt measures for the erection of a monument to Mr. Webster—Mayor Sever presiding. Speeches were made by Edward Everett, George S. Hilliard and others. Gov. Boutwell and suite will attend Mr. Webster's funeral.

Elizur Wright has been acquitted of the charge of aiding the rescue of Shadrach.

Florida Election. We gave Thursday the reported vote in every county but two—Holmes and Walton—by which Broome appeared to have a majority of 278, and Maxwell a majority of 198. We have now the returns from Holmes and Walton, with the exception of a single precinct in the latter. In the two Ward's majority is 65, Cabell's 135. Subtracting these figures from those given above, and we have Broome elected by a majority of 212, and Maxwell by a majority of 63. Our table of the vote in the several counties, made up as it is of returns informally reported, probably contains numerous slight errors; but as the correction of these will be likely to affect the vote on one side as much as on the other, there is no reason to doubt that the official reports will show the democratic nominees to be elected by majorities not greatly differing from those which we have assigned them.

The legislature is known to be democractic by a decisive majority. Savannah Georgian of the 23rd.

The Crops. The Jefferson (Texas) Herald of the 9th ultimo says:

"Cotton is beginning to come in rapidly. Loads of corn, fodder and provisions from the country may be seen every day in the streets. Lively and extensive preparations for storage of all kinds are going on at the landing. Occasional rains keep the lake up quite high for this time of the year."

The Caddo (La.) Gazette of the 16th ult. says:

"The die has been cast—the lottery drawn, and three is no doubt but such a crop of cotton will this year be made in our part of the world as has not for a long series of years been seen."

Gov. Troup, of Georgia, it is said, did not accept the nomination of the Southern Rights party of Alabama for the Presidency. It appears there was an omission in his letter as published. He recommended the Southern Rights men to embrace the opportunity of voting for Gen. Pierce, and to use his name only for organizing and maintaining the party and its principles.

MARRIED,

In Robeson County, on the 21st ult., by Rev. Hector McLean, Mr. Duncan N. Currie to Miss Catharine M. Currie, daughter of Arch. Currie, deceased.

DIED,

At his residence, near Williamston, in Martin County, on 25th October, 1852, William Slade, aged 45 years. In this dispensation of Divine Providence we are reminded how inscrutable are the ways of the Almighty, his judgments past finding out. He has left a wife and eleven children; but they mourn not as those without hope. He was for several years an exemplary member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and died with bright evidences of the Christian's hope and faith, and with the strongest confidence that his dissolution would be an exchange of this world of tribulation for a brighter and purer world above. His death is deeply afflicting to the community in which he lived, and his memory will be cherished by his numerous friends. The faithful friend—the Christian neighbor—the useful citizen—the kind and affectionate husband, parent and master is no more. May the last end of his many friends and relatives be like his, and may God, who can "temper the wind to the shorn lamb," sustain with the consolations of His Holy Spirit the weeping relict and her disconsolate and bereaved children. A. B.

It will be perceived that the Counties which have had pupils at the Deaf and Dumb Institute for the year ending May 1st, 1852, and which have failed to pay the tax of seventy-five dollars for the support and education of each scholar, have had the same deducted, according to act of Assembly, from the amounts to which they are respectively entitled.

A GOOD OPENING.

Hotel for Sale in Franklinton, N. C.

THE Subscriber offers his Public House and premises, in the town of Franklinton, Franklin County, N. C., for sale. This Establishment is situated on the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road, which will, when the Central Rail Road is finished, be the main thorough fare from the North to South. This is the only Public House in the place, and presents inducements rarely met with in any other village. It has been an eating House for passengers for the last four or five years, who have for some time past been eating twice a day; and I have not the least doubt but it will be kept up as an eating House. The House is large and tolerably conveniently arranged for the business, and has lately undergone considerable repairs. I would give a good bargain in this place. My only inducement in wishing to dispose of this place, is, that I am worn out in the good cause of feeding people, having been in the business for the last 12 or 14 years. If I should not sell by the 1st day of December, I would rent or lease. Persons wishing to engage in this business would do well to apply soon. JAS. I. THOMAS.

NOVELTY WORKS,

WEST ST., RALEIGH, NORTH-CAROLINA,

SILAS BURNS, PROPRIETOR,

BUILDER OF

Steam Engines & General Machinist.

THE above establishment has been in successful operation about one year, and has turned out some of the best STEAM ENGINES and SAW MILLS that have ever operated in this or any other State.

Orders are solicited for Steam Engines and Saw Mills, Mill Gearing and Machinery of every discription to be completed during the Summer and Fall. The improved condition of the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road will enable me to fill with dispatch and punctuality all orders after the 1st of July.

The following certificate will show the character of the work executed at the above Works:

AUBRY, Cumberland, May 15, 1852.

Mr. SILAS BURNS,

Dear Sir: Our Engine and Mills, made at your shops, have been at work nearly two months, and fully meet our expectations. The ENGINE, as to FINISH and STRENGTH, PERFORMANCE and DURABILITY, is inferior to none in the State of the same class made here or elsewhere. The MILLS run with a smoothness and speed truly astonishing. In ordinary sawing we cut in a common sized log, 1 foot in 3½ seconds or 16 feet per minute. We have run, however, through an 18 feet log in 32 seconds or at the rate of 33 feet per minute, by running to the top speed we fully believe we can cut 40 feet per minute. The only objection we have heard urged is, it takes too many hands to haul up logs and carry away lumber. Yours, &c.,

JONES & BARBEE.

"Eagle Hotel," Chapel Hill, for Sale

THE Proprietress of this well known and profitable establishment, having realized a sufficient income to warrant her in resuming the quiet of a private life, offers to the public generally the opportunity of bidding for its advantages.

The citizens of the State are so well acquainted with the advantages of its position, that but few remarks are necessary to complete their information.

The Hotel itself possesses all the requirments of room and comfort, which its purchasers can desire. It has capacity for the accommodation of one hundred and fifty boarders, and the recent and rapid growth of the University, adjacent, makes it an easy matter to possess such or even a greater number of students.

In addition to this, the frequent travel through Chapel Hill gives the Hotel, (being the only one in the place) a transient custom equal to any in the State.

The lots and stables adjoining are extensive and commodious, and the country-market supplies abundantly and on profitable terms much of its provisions.

The terms of sale require one third of the price to be paid on taking possession. A note, with safe security and time of payment suited to the convenience of the purchaser, are the reasonable demands for the remainder.

If further information be desired concerning the inducements to purchase, the President of the University or any other resident of the village, will furnish it.

Possession can be obtained at any time, after the 1st of May. Apply to ANNE S. HILLIARD.
